2016 Best and Worst Cities to Find a Job

Excerpt from article by Richie Bernardo, WalletHub.com, January 4, 2016

"It's a good time to be on the job market, especially if you are a recent college graduate. The National Association for Business Economics expects nonfarm employment to grow by nearly 210,000 jobs per month as unemployment falls to 4.7 by fourth quarter. According to the National Association of Colleges and Employers, fewer than 2 percent of positions requiring a bachelor's degree or higher were unfilled in 2015, and more than 60 percent of employers plan to raise starting salaries this year. That's twice as many employers who were willing to do so for the Class of 2010."

"...In order to assess the relative strength of local job markets, WalletHub's analysts compared 150 of the most populated U.S. cities across 17 key metrics. They range from job opportunities to employment growth."

Great news...Cincinnati ranked #27 out of the top 150 most populated cities and the #2 city with the highest number of job opportunities.
